Case Studies

Northland Power – Legal Counsel

As part of their expansion plans across Eastern Europe alongside their existing investment into the Baltic Power project in Poland, Northland Power approached Taylor Hopkinson to source an experienced legal counsel in the region. The brief was to attract a Polish national with excellent English-speaking skills who could provide legal/contract support locally whilst maintaining close links with the Northland business in other parts of Europe and Canada. With Poland beginning to grow their offshore wind capability, the market was extremely competitive at the time which made the search relatively challenging – nevertheless we managed to source an excellent candidate based in Warsaw who had previously worked in the UK who is now excelling in the role.

BlueFloat Energy – Partnerships Counsel

Due to further anticipated growth, we were approached by BlueFloat Energy's General Counsel to recruit a M&A and Partnerships Legal Counsel. This was a key role responsible for working alongside the Business Development Vice-President on potential project acquisitions and helping BlueFloat Energy to build strategic relationships across the UK.

After an unsuccessful internal recruitment process, we shortlisted several strong candidates who BlueFloat managed to distil down to a shortlist culminating in the hiring of a well networked M&A professional who will join the business to support their growth ambitions.

Maple Power – General Counsel

We were engaged by Maple Power, jointly by the CEO and the General Counsel of one of the shareholders to source a top tier Legal Counsel for the business in London – this was a key role for the team as their first legal counsel, they were outsourcing significant legal work and leaning heavily on counsel within the shareholder partners. We delivered an impressive, diverse shortlist after a thorough research campaign gaining excellent feedback culminating in Maple securing an excellent candidate with a strong legal track record across offshore wind.
